Midwestern Logistics Company Hires Global Business Development Manager to be based in Southern California

INDIANAPOLIS (April 5, 2010)--Indianapolis-based Langham Logistics Inc., a global third party logistics company specializing in custom supply chain solutions, announced that it has hired a new Global Business Development Director to head up business development initiatives in the Western United States as well as support Langham's current client base.

"We are delighted to have Paul as part of our team," said Cathy Langham, president and co-founder of Langham Logistics. "His experience in logistics technology and consulting makes him an invaluable addition to our business."

In the past year, Langham has taken significant steps to grow its global presence including bringing on new global business development managers in Denver, Cincinnati, and now Orange County, Calif. Along with these new additions, Indianapolis-based business development managers have expanded each of their territories to provide full sales coverage of the Continental U.S. In addition, Langham's International Sales staff is focused on global sales development with a concentration on South America, Europe and the Far East.

"Langham is confident that bringing Paul onboard will help to successfully continue to expand its national and global footprint, while increasing our client base throughout the world," said Cathy Langham.

Pancoe most recently worked as a manager in the PwC Process Improvement practice, based in Los Angeles. He has over 20 years of industry experience in supply chain, logistics, transportation and distribution. He brings a holistic, hands-on perspective to help companies solve their supply chain challenges. Throughout his career, Pancoe has held supply chain positions at The Walt Disney Company, Ingram Micro, i2 Technologies, UPS Supply Chain Solutions and BAX Global.
